Dear Saints JFX Parishioners,

As we begin our celebration of Catholic Schools Week, I find myself reflecting on what this week meant to me growing up as a student in a neighboring Catholic school—and how those same feelings are alive and well at Saints JFX today.

For many of us, Catholic Schools Week holds some of our fondest childhood memories. I remember the excitement of spirit days, the pride of wearing our school uniforms, special school Masses, classroom celebrations, and the feeling that something about this week was different—that our school, our teachers, and our faith were being joyfully celebrated. Those moments may have seemed small at the time, but they left a lasting imprint.

Catholic schools have a unique way of shaping hearts as much as minds. They are places where faith is not just taught, but lived—where prayer begins the day, service is expected, kindness is modeled, and every child is known and loved. Catholic Schools Week reminds us of the powerful role these experiences play in forming students who grow into thoughtful, compassionate, and faith-filled adults.

At Saints JFX, I see this every day. I see it in our students who serve others with generosity, in teachers who give far beyond what is asked, and in families who choose Catholic education because they believe in something deeper than academics alone. I see it in our parishioners whose prayers, encouragement, and support help sustain our school and its mission.

This week is also a celebration of partnership—between home, school, and parish. Catholic education thrives because of this shared commitment. I am deeply grateful to our parents for entrusting us with their children, to our parish community for standing beside us, and to our faculty and staff who dedicate themselves wholeheartedly to forming the whole child.

As we celebrate Catholic Schools Week, I invite you to reflect on your own memories and to join us in creating new ones for today's students—memories rooted in faith, joy, belonging, and hope. May this week renew our gratitude for the gift of Catholic education and strengthen our commitment to ensuring it remains vibrant for generations to come. A second collection will be taken up today to support Saints JFX School, and I thank you for your continued generosity and prayers.

Thank you for being an essential part of the Saints JFX community. We are truly blessed.

With gratitude and blessings,

Colleen Larkin
